COMPLAINT ALLEGATION SUMMARY:

Calix is a software and AI company that deals in the provision of cloud and software platforms, systems, and services.

The complaint alleges that, throughout the Class Period, Defendants made materially false and/or misleading statements, as well as failed to disclose material facts about the company's business, operations, and prospects. Specifically, Defendants misrepresented and/or failed to disclose that: (1) Calix's first quarter margins had seen significant benefits from advanced purchasing of memory components; (2) that said, Calix's advanced supply of memory components was being depleted; (3) this created negative margin pressure, which caused the company to purchase memory components at rising prices; and (4) as a result of the foregoing, Defendants' statements about the company's business, operations, and prospects were materially false and misleading and/or lacked a reasonable basis at all relevant times.

WHY DID CALIX'S STOCK DROP?

On April 21, 2026, Calix reported its 2026 first quarter results, revealing that "Non-GAAP gross margin was 57.2%, a decrease of 80 basis points sequentially." The report went on to provide that the next quarters' guidance would continue on a downward trend, stating that the gross margin guidance for the second quarter is "55.8% (at the midpoint) is down 140 basis points from the previous quarter." On this news, Calix's stock price fell nearly 14%.

THE LEAD PLAINTIFF PROCESS:

The Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 permits any investor who purchased or acquired Calix securities during the Class Period to seek appointment as lead plaintiff in the Calix class action lawsuit. A lead plaintiff is a representative party that acts on behalf of other class members in directing the litigation. In order to be appointed lead plaintiff, the Court must determine that the class member's claim is typical of the claims of other class members, and that the class member will adequately represent the class. Your ability to share in any recovery is not, however, affected by the decision whether or not to serve as a lead plaintiff. Filling out the online form above or communicating with any counsel is not necessary to participate or share in any recovery achieved in this case. Any member of the purported class may move the court to serve as a lead plaintiff through counsel of his/her choice, or may choose to do nothing and remain an inactive class member.
